ANNUAL TEMPERANCE MEETING AT THE SAILORS' HOME

There was a very well, attended and hearty neeting held at the Sailors' Home on Friday night in honour of the fourth anniversary Missions to Seamen Branch of the Church England Temperance Society, established on 26th February, 1886, in Hongkong. A large number of seamen came athore from the har bour in one of the Steamlaunch Co.'s launches chartered (at a reduced rate by the kindness of the Secretary) for the secasion. The chair was taken by the Chaplain (Rev. A. G. Goldsmith). After the mosting had been opened with the hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers." and the reading of Galatians vi. 1-9, the Ropor was given by Mr. W. Tarn. This report showed that 326 men had the Society during the year, 1889, making a grand total for the four years of 1,366. An address followed from Dr. Thomson, M.A. M.B.; of the Loudon Mission, Dr. Thomson took as his subject the "battlement for the second roof" which every Jew under the mosaic dis- dinary Shanghai tub line an opening which is pensation was directed to erect on his house for discharge it is slow as to be of very little use as The starters were: A. sociates and (2) to his children. The second speaker was Mr. Dyer Ball, Interpreter at the Supreme Court. He began, by alluding to an old copy of the China Mail. no. der the date 1864, where an article occurred congratulating the colony on the erection amongst other improvements of the Sailors' Home at West Point, and expressing the hope that this would be a great means of combatting the terrible evils of the low grog shops which so often brought ruin to our senmen ashore. Mr. Ball thought that if the writer of that article could have been present at the meeting to-night, he would feel after bearing the re port that had been given, and seeing the goodnumber gathered there together that the Sailors' Home was indeed the centre of a tem perance work which was endeavouring to benefit the seafaring class who came to this port. He referred to the invitation "Come thou with us and we will do thee good :" and he said that advice was better couched in this manner than in that other, viz., "Do as I say, but don't do as I do." There was a Scotch proverb which the speaker would not trust himself to speak in dislect, but which ran as follows "The proof of the pudding quired, is in the presing o't." We as temperance people can say come and we will do thee good to thy body, to they mind, and to they soul. It was good for ourselves and good for others. In speaking about the temptations which assailed men. e quoted an old north country saying that You cannot keep the birds from flying around cour head, but you can prevent them from mak ing their nests in your bair." He concluded that in this case as in every other, union was strongth, as was proved by the societies and associations of every kind that were now the or Both apeeches were received with much ap plause. During the evening solos were song by Mrs. Harris, Mrs. Cobban, and Miss Ridley and the choir gave a quartette, the anthem " will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometic my help," and several choruses: The meeting was concluded by a few words from the Chairman, in which he thanked all the helpers of the past year and of that evening A hymn was then sung and the benediction pronounced Six new members were enrolled. and the andience adjourned to the dining room, kindness of several ladies in the colony.

MR. CHADWICK'S REPORT ON THE DRAINAGE SYSTEM OF THE PEAK DISTRICT.

The following is Mr. Chadwick's report the Sanitary Board on the drainage of the Peak District .-

To the President and Members of the Sanitary

The points to which I directed my attention were :- The workmanship and design of the The general workmanskip of the sewers good, and the gradients are quite sufficient, even in the flattest portions, to secure a self-cleansing velocity, with a small flow of water. The internal condition of the sewers was tested, by pouring water down the manholes, successively; commencing at the lower end; and observing the condition of the water as it passed the manhole below that down which it was poured. In every case but one the first flush brought away s small quantity of deposit; the second bucketful of water ipassed through practically clean. posit and render them inoffensive.

On Wednesday similar alternations in case, of a temporary character, removable by a connection between temperature and the movepoured down briskly.

This house-drain has, necessarily, a very moderate fall, and I have reason to suspect that it contains deposit, either on account of faulty lime to time is a fact, but they are temporary, usage, I have ordered it to be opened up. At this point, which has been the source of many complaints, there is a flushing tank which i receives the sowage of one house only, R. B. L. 53. The consumption of water in this tenement appears to be small, so that the tank only fills and discharges itself once in two, or even three days. Prior to the addition of sulphate of iron to say the least, an intolorable naisance. to its contents, the tank in itself may have New these openings have been removed to less been a source of nuisance. The automatic flush-tanks act admirably, but would naturally be more efficient if they received more sewage, and discharged their contents On raising the manhole-covers, a bad small was frequently observed. This is not to wondered at considering the small stream highly concentrated, and I suspect, putrescent would have caused an equally bad smell if it had been carried past one in a bucket. Only once did I perceive any offensive smell from a manhole or ventilator as I walked along the road. This came up through the ill-fitting joints of the cover. The efflux of sewer-tainted air was temporary only; for, though I passed

To sum up. I am of opinion that the Peak sewers are so constructed as to be capable of conveying away the sewage from the district, without can dng any approciable nuisance, or any danger to health.

The nuisances which have been the cause of so much complaint may be, for the most part traced to the following causes:-

(1.) To an inadequate water-supply. (2.) To defective construction; or, at improper usage of house-drains (3) To casual obstructions, due to making connections, or to building operations, pieces of brick and the like blocking the drain.

(4.) To want of supervision and management.

(5.) To causes having no connection with the The effect of the deficient water supply is twoold. In the first place, the flow is reduced in volume; and in the second place, it is unduly concentrated. As long as water has to be drawn from wells, and carried by hand, servants-will nue as little water as possible and use it over and over again. When the water supply is completed there will be no excuse for such a ersimonious use of water. I would however, point out that the inhabitants the Peak district have it in their power, even now, to offect a great improvement in the drainage system. Let them take care of the house-drains, and the street sewers will take care of themselves. If they flush the housedrains, they will flush the sewers. Even with the present water-supply, there should be no ifficulty in keeping the drains and sowers clean. The inhabitants of the district are Europeans. every one of whom uses daily a bath containing from ten to thirty gallous. If the contents of these baths were discharged, quickly, through an opening or plug-hole of ample size, an axcollent flush would be obtained. The outlets of buths are usually much too small. The or-deposit in pipe drains before it. In many fustances, the house-draids have, for some part of their length, at least, too little fall It is everywhere desirable that house-drains should have a good fall. Here it is specially important; because of the small volume of sawage, the large size of the drains, and the improper substances that there is good reason to bea flush. If the same amount of water was dis-

An inclination of 2 inches in 10 feet or one i sixty, seems, generally, to be looked upon as an ample fall. I am of opinion that, whenever practicable, a fall of at least one in thirty or one in twenty-five should be used. I freely admit that house-drains with gradients of one in sixty, or even less, can be made to work perfectly. But to do so requires freely-diluted sewage. well chosen appliances, and above all, care in use. Here there are no water-closets or other appliances which give an automatic flush. Consequently steep gradients should be adopted, whenever possible. There are but few cases, in the Peak District, where ample gradients could not be obtained, merely at the cost of a little extra excavation. I have in another communication, pointed out to the Board the necessity for amplifying the by-laws as regards house-services, so that I will not pursue this subject further at present. Casual obstructions are an invariable incident in the early history of any drainage system, more especially when building is going on in the distriet. To guard against these, or rather to ensure their prompt removal supervision is At the present moment the person who looks after the working of the Peck Drainage has other functions to perform; under the Surveyor-Joneral. The supervision will be better performed by a man specially appointed under the Water and Drainage Department or by the Sanitary Board's Inspector. As to complants due to causes not connected with the sewers I will give an example. A complaint was made of a stouch from the sewers. At the point in question there was no manhole, and on careful examination no leakage was found, but the putresount carcass of a cat was liscovered under a bridge near by. The existing outfalls were not intended to be final. I am of opinion, that the time is at hand whon the sewage of this district should be concentrated to two outfalls only. The effluent of the three systems discharging date the Abordian valley should be collected and carried down to the lower and fatter part of the valley where it should be for their valuable assistance, and commended used to irrigate a garden. A suitable site the work to their continued prayer and effort for this purpose can, I believe, be found at sufficient distance from a road or from any European dwelling to prevent it from being a nuissauce. In this manner, the sewage will be disposed of effectively, and the polintion of the stream below will be prevented effectually. This stream although not at present used for domestic purposes should be protected from pollution > juxuriant orop of self-sown tomatoes, immediately below the present outfalls, shews that the sewage is suitable for irrigation ... Moreover I believe that the establishment of gardens, on the lower part of the Aberdeen valley, will tend to facilitate the removal of excreta, by creating a demand for it, and thus insur-

The observations serve, however, to shew that steady ascending ourrent does not obtain. That foul smells issue from ventilators from the ventilators are at once diffused throughout the ever-changing atmosphere, these odours can cause no real danger to health. The original position of the ventilating openings in the middle of the path-way was objectionable, because any smell issuing from them was directly under the noses of passengers, and therefore, objectionable points away from the road, and any escape from them will be harmless. If at any time a persistent smell is observed from any ventilators it will be a sign that there is some obstruction or other derangement of the system requiring immediate investigation. To sum up. An ample water-supply with increased attention on the part of house-holders to the condition of their drains will remove all reasonable cause of complaint. The Government is taking stope to provide the water-supply; the rest depends on the good-will and good sense of the inhabitants.

TAMSUI.

22nd February. I have not sent you anything lately in the Land & Building-ay of news from this land of the tree-form and H. Land Investm't way of news from this land of the tree form and savago, chiefly for the reason that there is so little doing here of interest to the great world outside that my remarks probably would have contained nothing but complaints about the climate generally and the weather in particular. The place has of late been filled by the native military, who seem more or less stricken with fever and hardly in a fit condition for fighting ; but an expedition, gay with the usual brightcoloured banners, under the command of General Li, did venture two or three weeks age on a campaign against the wily savages, who on the ap--proach of the bilious looking Honan braves retired quietly into their own fastnesses. General Li returned trimphast to Tament, without having fired a chot. But he has gone again with two steamer-loads of soldiers round to the east coast, where he expects to be better able to get at the savages. The result is not yet known. Our Consul has been transferred to Shanghai where be will meet with a wider field for his talents than he has found here. His successor. we are glad to learn, is famous in the annals of topical song and histrionic art. If he can introduce any fun into Tameni we shall all bless
